Remembering The Dead Soldiers.

The Thomas M. Wherry Post, No. 150, Grand Army of the Republic, on the 30th of May dedicated the soldiers' graves at the Jones and Mt. Vernon graveyards.

The ceremonies were very interesting, and we people of the Mt. Vernon neighborhood are very thankful to the Post for the honor and respect that they so generously showed our brothers and friends of the city of the dead.

The lodge met at Pataville and forming line marched a distance of four miles. They went to the grave yard on the old Johnson farm and beautifully decorated three graves there, and then they marched to the church, where they partook of an old-fashioned soldier's dinner.

After dinner a crowd of about 1,000 gathered in and around the church where they listened to the most eloquent address, delivered by Colonel Cowden, of Dayton, O. The Pataville Cornet Band furnished music for the occasion in a most commendable manner. A choir of little girls, also from Pataville, rendered some nice singing.

NOT SO! Once in a while you will hear some one say, "Winter's goods are good, but they charge more than So-and-so." This is a mistake. But even if it were true, the purchaser would still be "on top." The fact is, we do undoubtedly sell the best Clothing in town, "OUR OWN MAKE," and the prices are actually lower than other houses make you pay for inferior goods. These are facts which our salesmen will be pleased to demonstrate.

THE PICNIC.

Railroaders Take a Day Off And Try To See Who Can Have The Best Time.

They Eat, Drink And Be Merry While The Children Romp In The Wild-wood.

EVERYBODY WAS HAPPY.

Last Saturday Master Mechanic F. J. Fryer treated the railroad people to a picnic at Skillman. All the shop men and railroad people along the line had been notified several days beforehand that the picnic would be given on that day and everybody that could get off was invited to attend.

Precisely at 8:30 a. m. a special train of two coaches left the shops, well loaded with employees of the road, together with their wives and children and an occasional close friend or relative. The regular train from Henderson brought a number of people from Henderson, Owensboro and elsewhere, while the down train did the same thing from points up the road.

Arriving at Skillman, a dancing floor was quickly made of material that had been brought on a flat car from the shops, already natured and jointed, and the amusements of the day began. A shooting gallery was erected, also a swing; and big, little, old and young all started to fully enjoy a day off.

If ever laboring men had a good time it surely was on this occasion. Both horse and string bands discomfited the most beautiful strains of music during the entire day, and dancing was indulged in almost incessantly.

At noon everybody seemed to have a basket load full of provision; so under the spreading branches of the large beech trees the sumptuous repast was spread and devoured in such a manner as only hungry people out rousting can demolish a "grab pile." Refreshments, such as material and "immaterial" substances were in abundance, and no one went either hungry or dry.

At 5:30 o'clock the people crowded into the two coaches and the regular passenger train pulled them back to Cloverport where those who lived down the road took passage on the West bound express for their respective homes. Mother nature was kind enough to contribute a beautiful day for the occasion and every thing was as pleasant as it could possibly have been made.

We are requested by the shop men to extend their sincere thanks to the committee, Messrs. C. C. and Mr. Fryer, whom they are under obligations for the privilege of the day off and the pleasures enjoyed.

MILKING JERSEYS.

PRICE, $2.50, BY D. W. VOYLES.

Through milking, performed in the light of full information regarding the anatomical construction of the udder and the chemical constituents of the milk, is at the of the greatest importance to the owners of Jersey cattle.

The art of milking consists in the removal of all the milk in the udder at the time of the act in the gentlest, most pleasant, and by rapid process, slow milking being always bad milking.

When being milked the cow should be in a condition of absolute quietude; if excited by the act of milking, she should be allowed time to quiet down.

No condition is so favorable to milking process as that feeling of safety following a full feed. The udder should be thoroughly cleaned, and the teat first chosen gently squeezed on its tip end in order to overcome the contraction of the sphincter muscle and thus facilitate the flow, after which the milk should be drawn as rapidly as possible.

It is a feeling of relief when milking is being completed, to which a cow responds and to which she will continue her consent to the end of the act, if it be not too long delayed, that is the only of valuable assistance in the process, last without which it cannot be properly completed.

The first teat selected should be milked perfectly clean before passing to another, and on no until all are emptied, by which time the first teat milked will be partly refilled by the "second flow," when the second round should be made in the same order as the first; but in adopting this system of milking, the same teat should not be chosen at every milking for the beginning, because the first quarter of the udder emptied has the assistance of the compression made by the three remaining distended quarters, and the last one milked has no assistance from this source; if, therefore, the same teat be always selected in the same order, the first milked would develop that quarter of the udder to increased capacity, while the last quarter emptied or partly emptied would correspondingly diminish in capacity. This fact can be taken advantage of in the development of deficient quarters by always emptying them first until the udder is balanced by their restoration.

Whether, in the act of milking, the teat shall be caught high up or compression made from its middle or lower half only, will depend upon the nature and construction of the udder and teats in each respective case. If the teats are of good size and have good openings leading both into them and out, the cow can be milked easily and rapidly by either plan; but in the case of a cow that has a small opening leading from the large milk-pouch into the teat, whether the teat be large or small, and whether the terminal opening be large or small, the udder cannot be emptied by drawing on the teats alone, but compression must be made high up, and include enough of the adjacent udder to force the milk out of the lower and large milk-pouch into the teat. This act is performed at the risk of producing various veins at the base of the teat that will eventually develop into chronic charge, but not to perform it to allow them to retain so much of their milk as to become early strippers and valueless animals.

Cows having fat udders usually belong to this class, and require the exercise of great deal of patience and skill in their management in order to preserve their usefulness. In the hands of a careless and unskillful milker they soon become of little practical dairy value.

When the field of hard milking is due to a small opening in the terminal end of the teat, the remedy is to make a small opening above, no operation can remedy, since if the teat be emptied easily and rapidly the udder above will fill, and require a small-pouch opening in refilling the teat, but will continue to give down the milk in a dribbling manner.

Cows that are imperfectly milked from whatever cause, either careless or imperfect milking from the fault of the milker, or from the defect that by reason of the anatomical construction of the udder as herein described, soon degenerate into worthless animals. The milk that remains in the udder from imperfect milking is that which is held by the small pouches or milk vesicles high up in the bag, and will form a curd which will excite inflammation and destroy the secreting function of the mucous lining or cause the adhesive and complete closure of the cavity or pouch.

It is the experience of every dairy of twenty-five or more cows, that a cow usually by three or four milking, that a cow is always wasted for the privilege of milking "old cows," because she displaces, and a stalling dairyman, who is not so in all reference to right or wrong, but to others that no one cares to milk. To be able to milk the hard ones with patience and skill is the qualification of a successful dairyman, and must be attained by successful dairymen.

PRESTON.

Having seen nothing from this place for a long time I will try to give a few items for the News, my favorite paper.

The inclement rains have made farmers very late in getting out their crops. Too much rain in the general complaint.

No weddings or deaths to report this time. We have such a good doctor no one can get sick, and strange to say we have good preachers and all willing to officiate yet no one gets married.

With long talk of May field has come and passed, and oh! the sweet strains of Uncle Wm's string band is still ringing in my ears. Stonewall's milkshake, ice-cream and lemonade. I surely can taste yet. The many pretty leas and lovely forms of fair maidens now in fancy flay before my gaze, and handsome young men there were, who I know will come day grace the White House. Last, but not least, the exquisite bouquets and garlands of flowers that decorated the ball room, swayed by the fair heads of pretty Lena Gilliland, will be a joy for ever to me.

Blindness, Paralysis, Rheumatism, Gout, Ky., Sept. 9, 1891.

Dear Sir:—More than two years ago my eyes began to fail. I immediately applied to eminent oculists for relief; for eighteen months they treated me without a particle of benefit. Finally, about three months ago, I went totally blind, and, as a last resort, I procured an Electropole, which, very much to the gratification of myself and family, has restored my sight. It has also greatly benefited my wife and daughter. My wife has been a subject of paralysis for more than two years, and my daughter a sufferer from inflammatory rheumatism for more than twelve years. All this has been effected in the last two months. Too much can be said in praise of the Electropole. If I were the possessor of the only one in existence, and it could not be reproduced the wealth of the universe could not purchase it. I consider it the greatest invention of the age. Truly and gratefully yours.

PISGAH.

"Oh, my back!" is the cry of the farmers at present.

Corn planting is about done, and setting tobacco is the order of the day.

Messrs. A. Miller and Wm. Trickey and Miss Maggie Bates were the guests of Miss Maggie Hamilton last Sunday.

Rev. R. T. Bruner filled his appointment here last Saturday and Sunday. Owing to the rain the attendance was not so large as usual.

Our Sabbath-school at this place is progressing nicely. I think when the weather becomes more settled the attendance will be large.

Mr. Lew Miller and wife and Master Virgil and Raymond, and Mrs. Mildred Hawkins were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Haulton last Sunday.

In the last issue of the News we read a letter from C. H. Newman, who now resides in Illinois. George was once one of our neighbor boys, and we wish him much success in his new home.

Files of people have piles, but DeWitt's Kidney Pills will cure them. A. R. Fisher, Cloverport, and Witt & Meador, Hardinsburg, Ky.

Benny Gets His Money. BRECKENRIDGE NEWS. This is to certify that the Fidelity and Casualty Accident Co., has paid me in full for loss of time in consequence of an accident that I sustained in Cloverport, Ky. The claim was paid as soon as the proofs were filed and presented to Mr. Nelson, their manager, in Louisville, Ky., and it was impossible for any claim to have been paid more promptly than my claim was. I can heartily recommend this company to all for its promptness and square dealing, and I regret that any one hesitated to place me in a false light. I have not been in the city of Cloverport, but have seen any one of its citizens, since the proofs of claim were made out. W. C. HENRY, Owensboro, Ky., May 30, 1893.

CHOLERA! FRESH OUTBREAK IN BERLIN.

Alarm for Its Invasion of America Well Founded.

The telegraphic dispatches of January 21st report the outbreak of cholera near, in Berlin, 63 cases and 19 deaths being reported.

Just now, when an epidemic of Asiatic cholera is the alarming pandemic disease, all stomach and bowel troubles assume an importance beyond the ordinary, and a stalling dairyman, who is not so in all reference to right or wrong, but to others that no one cares to milk. To be able to milk the hard ones with patience and skill is the qualification of a successful dairyman, and must be attained by successful dairymen.
